The stock market continues irregular and rather weak, wing to the conflict between the leading bull and bear perators. The fight on the part of the latter is becoming perates. The fight on the part of the latter is becoming sperate, and so long as they have the power they will tabandon the contest. They are meanwhile unscru-lous enough to resort to false arguments, with a view arouse the fears of others, that a stringent money triket is at hand. If this were true the game would be our own hands, to a great extent, but money one to be very easy at five per cent, and now of houses on the street which were unable to end their balances at that figure. Before very long there will probably be a break in the market, but speculations ased upon this are at present premature, and it has during the last few days undergone so much depression that a moderate reaction would be not unlikely in the present ondition of the money market. An artificial activity as sought to be created by the bears buying and borrowng largely upon seven-thirty notes; but strategy of this kind usually fails of its object. If the market sinks lower just now it will not be because money is tight. best grade of commercial paper passes at 6 a 8 per

Gold was dull, notwithstanding the shipment of $905,250 by the Scalia, and the reported shipment of a further large sum by the Havana steamer. The opening price was 13014, from which it declined to 129%, but quently rose to 130%. At ave P. M. it had re-

The full in subscriptions to the seven-thirty loan is nore attributable to the unusually heavy subscriptions of last week than the reservationary clause introduced by ne Secretary of the Treasury; but that clause was certainly not calculated to improve the prospects of the san, nor to result in any saving to the government. The change to be of any service the Treasury ought to have been from seven and arectoriths to six per cent in currency, and its effect would have been no greater in checking subscriptions than the provision referred to, which makes a portion of public, who are impressed with the Idea that green-oks are, or soon will be, as good as gold, regard it as a six per cent instead of a seven-thirty loan. The pros pect, however, of the Treasury being in a position to avail itself of the option at the expiration of the three years from July next is remote.

beavy under the prospect of early large receipts. The prevalence of some little abirping demand encourages the hope that the downward tendency may be soon checked, however; though, onless prices on the other checked, however; though, onless prices on the other side advance materially, we see little prospect of any very large export movement, unless prices here decline still more. The sales were about 12,000 bushels, at $1.70 for amber Michigan, $1.35 for Milwaukee club, $1.40 for poor winter red, and $2.20 for white Michigan. Rye was duil, heavy and declining.
